The Baby Who Is a King
Isaiah 11:1-10

1. It means a change in _____. (vv. 1-2)

Isaiah is drawing a contrast here between Jesus and the _____.

So Isaiah, some 800 years before Jesus' birth, predicted that a descendant of Jesse would replace the Assyrians as _____ of the world.

Jesus is the _____ and the _____ that Isaiah speaks of in verse 1.

Jesus will be the _____ Ruler.

2. There will be a change in _____. (vv. 3-5)

He uses _____ goals and methods to lead.

Righteousness and faithfulness are the _____ of His government.

3. There will be a change in _____. (vv. 6-9)

As part of His reign, all nature will be _____ to its original state.

For further study:

Gen. 1:29-30; 2:19-20; 9:2; Rom. 8:20-23; Rev. 20:1-4

The reason for all this is that the _____ of the Lord will be everywhere.

4. There will be a change in _____. (v. 10)

He will be lifted up as a banner, and the whole _____ will gather around Him.

Those who don't know Him will, one way or another, _____ Him as Lord in the end.
